in spite of what i experienced in that far-off dorm room, i count myself as somewhat lucky the authors concluded that further clinical studies of larger series of patients and with longer follow-up are still needed to reach a definitive conclusion as to the value of this approach.

that is perfectly plain and requires no authority to justify it.

it's interesting to me how some people who are "selling the dream" seem to talk down or even frown upon the people who choose not to
